Indicator ID and name	R.1.5 Number of participants who consider the training useful for their work
Indicator definition	Participant means a natural person benefiting directly from an operation (project) without being responsible for initiating or both initiating and implementing the operation (project) as set out in Art. 2(40) CPR. For the purpose of this indicator, a participant means a person dealing professionally with the CEAS ('staff'). A participant may work for any type of body e.g. public administration, non-profit organisation etc. In order to determine whether a participant considers the training useful, each participant needs to be asked for her/his opinion after each training within the same project.
Measurement unit of indicator and target	Absolute number
Target 2029	To be set by the MS in line with the programme strategy. The target can be set by using as a reference the average of usefulness rates of similar programmes supported by national or EU funds (e.g. HOME funds or ESF) or the success rate of one single similar activity. Latest available data from the period 2014-2020 should be used. If data from several training is taken, the average should be used to establish the reference. Comparable data from other Member States can be used if deemed necessary. Once this basic reference (% of participants that considered the training useful in the past) is calculated, the target in absolute numbers can be defined by applying the percentage to the associated output increased, if applicable, by the expected improvement (E.g., if the reference figure for the previous figure was 75% and the Member State expects to increase the usefulness of the training, it should consider using a higher percentage (e.g. 80%) for calculating the target). It is recommended not to be overambitious nor too pragmatic in setting the target: while the aim would be to obtain higher results than in the past, usefulness rates up to 100% are unlikely to be reached.
Associated output indicator	O.1.2. Number of participants in training activities
Comments	Immediately after a participant has received the training, his/her result can be recorded and reported under this indicator. If a participant attends several training activities within the same project, the following steps should be taken for recording the data: (1) record the result of each participant immediately after the participant finished each training activity,

	(2) calculate the overall result for each participant by establishing the average of the individual results reported under point 1 above. This step is carried out upon project closure, (3) If the overall result for the participant is positive, report it under the indicator. The overall result is considered to be positive when the majority of responses (> 50%) from the participant indicated that the training was useful for his/her work. If the overall result is 50:50 (e.g. two positive and two negative responses), the most recent result recorded should be reported as overall result for this participant. For reporting purposes only: data broken down by gender (women, men, non-binary⁶) and by age-bracket <18, 18-60, >60. SFC2021 to be adapted. The age of the participant is calculated from the date of birth and determined on the date when the participant enters the project for the first time. This annual average should be then multiplied by the number of implementation years. Finally, the expected improvement as compared to the previous period, if applicable, should be added to that figure in order to get the target.

Measurement unit of indicator and target	Absolute number of participants who have improved their proficiency level
Target 2029	To be set by the MS in line with the programme strategy. The target can be set by using as a reference the average of result rates of similar programmes supported by national or EU funds (e.g. HOME funds or ESF) or the result rate of one single similar activity. Latest available data from the period 2014-2020 should be used. If data from several training are taken, the average should be used to establish the reference. Comparable data from other Member States can be used if deemed necessary. Once this basic reference (% of participants who improved their proficiency in the past) is calculated, the target in absolute numbers can be defined by applying the percentage to the associated output increased, if applicable, by the expected improvement. (E.g., if the reference figure for the previous figure was 75% and the Member State expects to increase the results of the training in terms of proficiency, it should consider using a higher percentage (e.g. 80%) for calculating the target). It is recommended not to be overambitious nor too pragmatic in setting the target: while the aim would be to obtain higher results than in the past, success rates up to 100% are unlikely to be reached.
Associated output indicator	O.2.3.1 . Number of participants in a language course
Comments	Immediately after a participant has received the training, his/her result can be recorded and reported under this indicator. Only one result per participant is reported, even if a participant improved his/her proficiency by more than one level in the same project. Unsuccessful attempts to improve the proficiency level do not override reporting the positive result. A positive result is considered to be achieved, when the participant's initial proficiency level is improved by at least one level. For reporting only: data broken down by gender (women, men, non-binary¹⁹) and by age-bracket <18, 18-60, >60. The age of the participant is calculated from the date of birth and determined on the date when the participant enters the project for the first time. Member States report on the breakdown and not on the total number of participants. The total number of participants will be

	calculated automatically by SFC2021. The number of participants reported under this indicator cannot exceed the number of participants reported under the indicator 'Number of participants in a language course'. Targets, milestones and the reported data for this indicator cannot exceed the milestones, targets and the reported data for the indicator "Number of participants in a language course"; A validation check in SFCC2021 will be added. Male <18 Male 18-60 Male >60 Female <18 Female 18-60 Female >60 Non-binary <18 Non-binary 18-60 Non-binary >60 Total number of participants (generated automatically by SFC, no separate reporting needed)

Indicator ID and name	R.2.9 Number of participants who report that the activity was helpful for their integration
Indicator definition	Participant means a natural person benefiting directly from an operation (project) without being responsible for initiating or both initiating and implementing the operation (project) as set out in Art. 2(40) CPR. For the purpose of this indicator, a participant means a third country national. The indicator reports on the participants' situation as perceived by the third-country national who received support from a project financed under the AMIF. A participant needs to indicate at least two out of the following five areas where the activity was helpful: (1) labour market integration, (2) acquisition of language of the host country, (3) relations with local population/community and active participation in the society, (4) housing, (5) health. Even if a participant received one type of

	support, it can influence more than one area. For example, participation in a language course can have an impact on the labour market integration and on relations with local community; personalised professional guidance can have an impact on the acquisition of housing and on relations with local community. Relations with local population/community and active participation in the society covers e.g. involvement in local /NGO activities, involvement of parents in (after)school activities, volunteer work for the benefit of the host society, membership in sport clubs, participation of children in youth organisations. Any type of support provided to the participant under the associated output indicator may contribute to this result.

Target 2029	To be set by the MS in line with the programme strategy. The target can be set by using as a reference the average of success rates of similar programmes supported by national or EU funds (e.g. HOME funds or ESF) or the result rate of one single similar activity. Latest available data from the period 2014-2020 should be used. If data from several activities are taken, the average should be used to establish the reference. Comparable data from other Member States can be used if deemed necessary. Once this basic reference (% of participants who considered the activities helpful in the past) is calculated, the target in absolute numbers can be defined by applying the percentage to the associated output increased, if applicable, by the expected improvement (E.g., if the reference figure for the previous figure was 75% and the Member State expects to increase the results in terms of helpfulness, it should consider using a higher percentage (e.g. 80%) for calculating the target). It is recommended not to be overambitious nor too pragmatic in setting the target: while the aim would be to obtain higher results than in the past, success rates up to 100% are unlikely to be reached.
Associated output indicator	0.2.3. Number of participants supported 0.2.3.1. Number of participants in a language course 0.2.3.2. Number of participants in a civic orientation course 0.2.3.3. Number of participants who received personalised professional guidance
Comments	Immediately after a participant received the support, his/her result can be recorded and reported under this indicator. If a participant benefits from several types of support within the same project, the following steps should be taken for recording

the data:

- (1) record the result of each participant immediately after the participant finished each type of support,
- (2) calculate the overall result for each participant by establishing the average of the individual results reported under point 1 above. This step is carried out upon project closure,
- (3) If the overall result for the participant is positive, report it under the indicator. The overall result is considered to be positive when the majority of responses (> 50%) from the participant indicated that the activities were useful for his/her integration. If the overall result is 50:50 (e.g. two positive and two negative responses), the most recent result recorded should be reported as overall result for this participant.

Under point 1, if a participant receives various forms of support, his/her assessment should be requested and recorded multiple times. If possible, the assessment should be requested each time when the participant finished receiving a specific support e.g. language course, civic orientation course, legal/psychological assistance related to a specific case. If a specific type of support consists of various but connected stages/meetings/exchanges, the assessment is requested only once.

A result means the participant's assessment of whether the support was helpful for his/her integration.

Target and the reported data cannot exceed target and the reported data for the indicator 'Number of participant supported', validation check in SFC2021.

For reporting only: data broken down by gender (women, men, non-binary²⁰) and by age-bracket <18, 18-60, >60. The age of the participant is calculated from the date of birth and determined on the date of when the participant enters the project for the first time. Member States report on the breakdown and not on the total number of participants. The total number of participants will be calculated automatically by SFC2021.
